DIRECTOR'S MESSAGE

Empowering Women, Enriching Lives, Building Stronger Communities

It gives me great pleasure to present this report reflecting the collective efforts, achievements, and impact of our programmes implemented during the reporting period. Each initiative undertaken by Archana Women's Centre and its partner organizations is rooted in our shared vision of empowering women, strengthening families, and building inclusive and sustainable communities.

This year, we have witnessed meaningful progress across various thematic areas including gender equality, livelihood enhancement, skill development, enterprise promotion, and community-based empowerment initiatives. From leadership training programmes and digital literacy sessions to enterprise development and livelihood support activities, every intervention has contributed to strengthening the capacities and confidence of women and marginalized groups in our project areas.

The active participation of community members, particularly women and young people, has been the true strength of our work. Their enthusiasm, commitment, and willingness to embrace change have resulted in visible improvements in family relationships, economic independence, and social awareness. We are especially encouraged by the positive shift towards gender equality practices within households and the growing leadership role of women in community platforms.

We also acknowledge the valuable support of our partners, stakeholders, and field teams whose dedication has made the successful implementation of these programmes possible. Their continuous engagement has ensured that our interventions remain relevant, impactful, and sustainable.

As we move forward, we remain committed to expanding our efforts, deepening our impact, and reaching more communities in need. Together, we aspire to create a society where dignity, equality, and opportunity are accessible to all.

With gratitude and best wishes,

Thresiamma Mathew

SUCCESS STORIES

1. MERCY'S JOURNEY FROM HOMEMAKER TO AWARD-WINNING WELDER

Mercy, a 47-year-old mother of two from Kottayam, transformed her life through the support of Archana Women's Centre (AWC). She first joined AWC's Bamboo Technology training programme. When bamboo-based livelihoods proved unsustainable due to limited raw materials and market opportunities, AWC introduced the women to welding, a field traditionally dominated by men.

Despite her initial hesitation, Mercy successfully completed the training and became a skilled welder. Today, she is a member of the Ettumanoor Vanitha Labour Contract Cooperative Society, the first all-women labour contract cooperative in Kottayam District. She works on fabrication projects such as bottle collection booths and chicken coops, earning a stable income in a safe and supportive environment.

The steady income has improved her family's quality of life, enabling her to support her children's education, purchase household essentials, and achieve financial independence. As Mercy says, "My work gives me pride and confidence. The cooperative provides dignity, security, and freedom."

Mercy and her team gained statewide recognition by winning the Pentharam 2025 Award from Malayala Manorama for their outstanding contribution to non-traditional livelihoods for women. Their success challenges gender stereotypes and demonstrates that women can excel in skilled trades.

Through initiatives like this, Archana Women's Centre has empowered around 11,000 women across four districts of Kerala by promoting sustainable livelihoods, economic independence, and social justice. Mercy's journey is a powerful example of how skills training and collective action can transform lives.

AWC also facilitated a bank linkage with HDFC Bank, helping Arpana CAG access credit for business expansion. Through this support, the group successfully availed loans, including a second installment of ₹6 lakh in 2026.
